THE BAAGH – a forest retreat, KANHA is located on the slopes of the Maikal ranges overlooking the valley with open views amidst 20 acres of native Sal, Mahua and Saja trees. Bordered by three tribal villages and barely 5 kilometers from the Mukki entrance to the park, “The Baagh” brings the feel of an intimate resort to a jungle lodge experience, as the name suggests it is truly a forest retreat.

THE RESORT... has been built keeping in mind ECO - FRIENDLY INITIATIVES, employing local manpower and industry. In an effort to leave a light "footprint" on available natural resources and TO HELP OFFSET THE CARBON EMISSIONS from the resort, we have created a plantation of 25,000 fruit and flowering trees and harnesses solar energy to minimize the use and effect of fossil fuel burning.

RAINWATER HARVESTING at the resort has created new arable land for the local farmers.

KANHA IS TRULY... the land of TIGERS and an outstanding National Park, located in the Central Indian State of Madhya Pradesh, noted for its last remaining population of the Hard Ground race of Swamp Deer.

Kanha also has healthy numbers of the Tigers, which may be seen during the day, and is one of the best places left to see them. Kanha has two main valleys, Halon in the east and Banjar in the west, and the grassy 'maidans' (often old village sites) dotted with clumps of forest that harbor large numbers of herbivores.

The forests are deciduous, the main tree being the Sal and there are large stands of Bamboo. Higher up the slopes the forests tend to become dense and mixed with Haldu and Bija trees. The name Kanha itself is derived from "Kankar" the local term for clayey soil found in the valley.

Kanha Tiger Reserve consists of a core area of 940 sq km and surrounded by a buffer zone of 1005 sq km. For management purposes, the park is divided into 5 ranges, namely Kisli, Kanha and Mukki in the Western block and Bhaisanghat and Supkhar in the eastern sector.

"The reserve provides you to be in the lap of nature and experience the marvels of its natural habitat".
